

Dear all,

The King's Student Law Review (KSLR) and Trinity College Law Review (TCLR) are excited to announce the publication of a new joint edition on constitutional law. This joint edition is an affirmation of the partnership established between both journals in 2013.

As of today, we will be reviewing abstracts from all those interested. This 'Call for Abstracts' is open until 6 pm (BST) on 14th August 2019.

Submissions must be relevant to the overarching theme of constitutional law. This general theme encompasses topics such as comparative constitutional law, the impact and importance of judicial review, the effect of international obligations on domestic law, a critical analysis of constitutional principles such as parliamentary sovereignty or the rule of law, and constitutional responses to populism.

All articles must be between 4,000 and 6,000 words in length. Articles must comply with the latest OSCOLA Guidelines (the 4th edition). Please click here for a conclusive guide.

If you are interested in submitting an article for this joint publication, please send an abstract, as well as the required information (outlined below) to the following email address:
kslr.tclr.joint@gmail.com

If you have any enquiries about the relevance of your proposed theme, please contact this email address. as well.

Required Information

- Title of the article, set in bold, ranged left and unjustified.
- Name of the author or authors directly below the title, followed by institutional affiliation, if applicable.
- Abstracts on relevant theme between 250-450 words

We look forward to receiving your submissions.

The King's Student Law Review and the Trinity College Law Review
For any general enquiries, please contact: kslr-tclr.jointedition@gmail.com.

If you have any enquiries that relate to the KSLR's work or collaboration in this project, please contact: kclstudentlawreview@gmail.com.

If you have any enquiries that relate to the TCLR's work or collaboration in this project, please contact: lawreview.trinitycollege@gmail.com